

George Mason University
College of Education and Human Development
School of Recreation, Health, and Tourism

The School of Recreation, Health, and Tourism at George Mason University invites applications for three faculty positions. The three positions available are in the disciplinary areas of Athletic Training, Exercise Physiology, and Sport Management. Salary for each position is commensurate with qualifications and experience.

Sport Management: The School of Recreation, Health, and Tourism at George Mason University invites applications for a 9-month tenure-track appointment in Sport Management beginning August 2007. Rank is open and salary is commensurate with qualifications and experience. Qualifications include an earned doctorate in Sport Management or closely related discipline. Primary responsibilities include teaching undergraduate and graduate courses; maintaining an active line of research in area of expertise; securing external funds; serving on school, college, and university committees; and developing professional partnerships with public and private agencies. Interested candidates should apply online for .position F8910z at: <http://jobs.gmu.edu> and complete the online Faculty application and attach a letter of interest and a CV. The review of applications will begin December 10, 2006 and continue until the position is filled. For more information contact Dr. Robert Baker, Chair, Sport Management Search Committee at rbaker2@gmu.edu

The University and School: George Mason University, recognized internationally for its innovation, diversity and entrepreneurial spirit, is a state supported, distributed university comprising campuses in Arlington, Fairfax, Loudoun, and Prince William Counties, Virginia. A member of the Consortium of Universities of the Washington Metropolitan Area, the university currently enrolls approximately 31,000 students in undergraduate, masters and doctoral programs. The university has emerged in the last decade as one of the premier institutions of higher learning in the state and the nation.

Dynamic, growing, and committed to excellence, the School offers a B.S. degree in Health, Fitness, and Recreation Resources with specializations in Parks and Outdoor Recreation, Therapeutic Recreation, Exercise Science, Health Promotion, Sport Management, and Tourism and Events Management; a B.S. degree in Athletic Training and a B.S.Ed. in Health and Physical Education. The School also offers a Master of Arts in Interdisciplinary Studies degree with a concentration in Recreation Resources Management and a Master of Science degree in Exercise, Fitness, and Health Promotion. The School utilizes both the Hemlock Overlook Center for Outdoor Education and the Freedom Aquatic and Fitness Center as teaching laboratories and enjoys close working relationships with federal, state, and local agencies promoting stewardship of the nation's natural resources and the health, fitness, and welfare of all people.

Additional Application Materials: Candidates for any of these positions should MAIL an official university transcript and three letters of recommendation to the appropriate Search Committee Chair at: School of Recreation, Health, and Tourism, George Mason University, 10900 University Boulevard, MSN 4E5, Room 213, Bull Run Hall, Manassas, VA 20110

George Mason University is an equal opportunity, affirmative action employer committed to meeting the needs of its increasingly diverse student body through appropriate personnel selection practices and procedures. Nominations of and applications from outstanding candidates are invited. Applications from women, minority candidates, and persons with disabilities are especially encouraged.